Ameerah Saine

Ameerah Saine is many things—host, speaker multicultural marketing expert, mother, leader, wife, veteran, and founder—but above all, she's a creator.

Having become a master of transforming limited resources into abundant opportunity at a young age, Ameerah has learned how to create a seat at the head of the table for herself.

Ameerah has led corporate marketing teams, built multiple results-driven businesses, produced and hosted an Apple-recognized business podcast, and established herself as a speaker and visionary of leadership and women's empowerment.

Upon realizing that her own professional experience inspired other entrepreneurs, she made it her aim to share her expertise with the world, carving out a safe space for women, entrepreneurs, and small business owners, like herself, to learn, grow, and thrive in whatever they do.

This space is called B A S Media—a small, agile marketing and branding company designed to support small businesses and start-ups with their marketing efforts in order to flourish and outcompete within their niche communities.

B A S Media was formed around Ameerah's "We Build, We Win" philosophy—a simple yet stunning declaration that when we support each other, we all excel—and provides everything from free educational content, to affordable creative service packages, to customized marketing strategy development to support those small, change-making companies like her own.

Ameerah believes in using her authentic voice to create space to grow, build and empower change.
